Is Ever Given incident a wake-up call for box ship size?

—Dr M. B. Mohandas

THE recent week long logjam in the Suez Canal, one of the busiest global maritime routes, emanated from the grounding of the four football pitches long, all Indians-manned Panamanian Flag carrier box ship Ever Given, with Japanese owners (Shohei Kisen Kaisha), Taiwanese operator Evergreen Marine, German Manager Bernard Schulte, and a member of UK P&I Club. This has further dented the crawling global supply chains from the Covid-19 pandemic shocks, European and Asian supply chains in particular. It is noteworthy that daily, 50 plus vessels, carrying over 10% tonnage of $19 trillion global merchandise trade (WTO – WTS 2019), including 7% world oil supplies and about 30% of container freight by volume, transit the 193 km long Canal. The financial implications emerging from this mega box carrier impasse, which eventually turned into an unprecedented maritime disaster on international trade and commerce, are multifarious and thus far reaching. It is said that SCA (Suez Canal Authority) has already slapped a claim of over a billion USD. Since the distinct international character of shipping and maritime laws complicates the claims and litigation processes and practices, some 3.5 billion USD worth on board cargo won't be allowed to leave the Canal unless otherwise a consensus is reached. All vessel related damage claims, including costs of salvage, refloating, towing, etc. would be settled by H&M (Hull & Machinery) insurers. The respective P&I (Protection & Indemnity) Club (in this case, UK P&I) is responsible for all third party liability claims. Potential cargo related claims can fall on the respective cargo insurer.

Maritime transport

Maritime transport, the most globalised industry, has been assimilated with international trade and commerce than ever, as water-borne movement is the cheapest, eco-friendly, energy-efficient and lowest accident rated, where the mandatory force to move a floating freight is always less than any other modes in operation. The progressive internationalisation of trade, finance, technology and professional management in the post-World War II epoch resulted in three major economic blocs – North American, European and Asian. In order to facilitate free trade among these blocs towards a global supply chain network, modern sea trade routes have been evolved between Atlantic, Indian and Pacific Oceans. Over time, the Asian bloc has become the global production supply chain hub, which subsequently led to the development of more complex global supply chains with multiple layers of suppliers having footprints in different geographical areas as Transpacific and Asia-Europe turned busiest waterways. Shipping is continuously witnessing technological and institutional revolutions like exponential growth of mechanised bulk movements, fast-track containerisation of general cargoes, and open registry shipping which were found fruitful in cost reduction and opening up the global market. Another striking feature is its insatiable desire for professional acumen, gradually disconnected ownership, operations and management. In the realm of interdependent globalised economy, maritime transport is predominantly focused on freight, technological advancement and economies of scale for faster, reliable and cost-effective international logistics. Thus, it directly caters and supports economic success and prosperity, where ever growing inter- and multi-modalism remains the governing mode. Today, 90% of world merchandise trade is seaborne, of which nearly 2 billion tonnes are moved in boxes – UNCTAD RMT2020.

At the same time, natural and manmade route barriers, which are intended to reduce sailing time, can hinder economies of scale. Here are the main three route barriers:

Malacca Strait is a 580 miles long, 1.7 miles minimum width and 82 feet average draught narrow stretch between Malaysia and Indonesia and also the shortest route between the Indian and Pacific Oceans.

Panama Canal, the 50 miles long manmade waterway, has reduced the transit time between the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans to about 10-11 hours. Otherwise, ships would navigate around Cape Horn, with an increased distance of 2,000-8,000 nautical miles.

Suez Canal, with its unique geographical location, is the shortest maritime route between the Atlantic and Indian Oceans by circumventing Cape of Good Hope. This 120 miles long manually constructed waterway has reduced Asia-Europe voyage time by 10 days, distance by 3,500 nautical miles and saves 700 MT bunker in each direction.

Why vessel size matters for liners?

Freight, the unit cost of transportation, is the only revenue from shipping, which is a function of her fixed cost, variable cost, lifespan (20-25 years) and tonnage, which is inversely proportional to the vessel size as the rate of change of fixed and variable costs is not in proportion with cargo capacity.

The fast-track containerisation of general cargoes supported with efficient inter-/multi-modal logistics systems and introduction of liner services was one of the classic commercial innovations of the 20th century. Today, more than 60 per cent of the global general cargo trade is carried out in unitised boxes and containerised trade accounts for about one-fifth of the total seaborne trade.

The economic rationale of containerisation is comprehensively relied on fewer calls, quick turnaround time, nil roll over, no blank sailings, fewer transshipments, minimum repositioning with less demurrage/detention. But, the liner industry has become heavily capital intensive with high fixed costs, about two-thirds, relatively low marginal costs and crippling with high sunk cost which left no room for any full cost pricing models; hence Hobson's choice is dynamic marginal pricing – "charge what the traffic can bear"! Generally, absolute capacity utilisation and market access enhancement have been realised through asset sharing and Trade Lane Agreements which safeguard and ensure capital mobility and commercial freedom to a greater extent.

The containership revolution had pushed in the early 80s with Panama Canal dimension as the benchmark. The subsequent evolutions are as shown in the accompanying chart.

It is evident from the chart that vessel size has more than doubled in the last one and a half decades and most of the mega carriers are deployed in Asia-Europe routes.

Conclusion

The liner industry is playing a significant role and would remain the main pillar in a containerised global supply chain management where most of the shippers are contemplating that their door-to-door consignments are to be reached safely with lightning speed at absurdly low freight under a single their joint venture as the Jumbo-SAL-Alliance. Combining their fleets and all commercial activities, SAL and Jumbo are gearing up to create a new powerhouse in the heavy lift sector, highlighted an official release.

This is a very proud moment for Jumbo and SAL. Both companies believe that this move propels them to a greater level of geographical outreach and commercial capacity. To serve clients worldwide, the joint venture acts as the single commercial entry point for its joint sales network of offices and agents in 20+ countries. Significantly, it handles the complete marketing of 30 highly versatile project cargo vessels with lifting capacities up to 3,000 t SWL, marking it as the largest fleet in the 800+ t sector. This ensures availability, flexibility and the right transport concept at the right time for customers seeking reliable and high quality shipping solutions.

ability and the right transport concept at the right time for customers seeking reliable and high quality shipping solutions.

Mr Michael Kahn, Managing

Director of Jumbo, says: "This joint venture is a big step for both of us. In the past few years, it became increasingly clear that the benefits of collaboration heavily outweigh the traditional way of doing business. Our client base and interests have changed and to remain an effective global player in our field of activity, you always need to adapt and innovate. Not only on a technical level, but also commercially. We believe that the flexibility and competences that our clients are looking for are best served by SAL's and Jumbo's combined assets and knowledge."

The Jumbo-SAL-Alliance stands for the highest QHSE standards, technical excellence and commercial flexibility by offering project and semi-liner services to customers worldwide, with the goal of creating a complete maritime transport solution for both breakbulk and specialised transportation scopes around the globe.

Mr Jens Baumgarten, Director Chartering at SAL Heavy Lift, adds: "This collaboration allows us to bring an unrivalled shipping product to market. It provides a solid answer to the needs of big contractors and EPCs as well as manufacturers and forwarders. On one side, we can handle regular or spot-market breakbulk cargoes. On the other, we have the experience and the assets to handle very large and long-term scopes, including arranging third-party tonnage or whatever is needed to make good on our 'one-stop-shop' promise. Simply said, we want our customers to be happy during and after each and every project. This way, they will trust us to deliver a new heavy lift solution for them the next time."

Jumbo and SAL are highly complementary, both in terms of fleets as well as human resources, both ashore and on board, while sharing many of the same values in terms of quality, safety and solutions focus. This equality makes the joint shipping product easy to combine and market as customers can expect a quality product irrespective of the vessel executing the shipment. The companies' traditional focus on safe operations and being a reliable partner is integral to our joint way of working.

Mr Martin Harren, Managing Director of SAL and the Harren & Partner Group, adds: "I truly believe we are creating something

SAI Maritime & Management, Mumbai represents Jumbo-SAL-Alliance in India

SAI Maritime India & Wheels and Time, India have great pleasure to announce that the Jumbo-SAL-Alliance has become operational with effect from April 15, 2021. This joint venture between Jumbo Shipping and SAL Heavy Lift serves as single commercial entry point to both carriers through their network of joint sales offices and agents.

Together we offer you a combined fleet of 30 highly versatile heavy lift vessels with lifting capacities up to 3,000 t WLL, which gives us more flexibility and ensures we can bring more value to our customers. You may visit www.jumbo-sal-alliance.com for further information. We look forward to bringing you the service and quality you are used to from Jumbo Shipping and SAL Heavy Lift under one roof and dedicate ourselves to maximum customer satisfaction.

In India, the Jumbo-SAL-Alliance is represented by SAI Maritime & Management, Mumbai which combines both the Jumbo office and the SAL offices locally. To keep things simple and aligned, you can send any future inquiries via our new regional e-mail address, india@jumbo-sal-alliance.com.

Rukhsana Vohra Mithani and Gautamraj Sharma will combine forces to work with the largest heavy lift shipping alliance in the world and look forward to continuing business under one single platform.

extraordinary here. This strategic collaboration combines engineered transport solutions with a significant fleet of heavy lift vessels. The Jumbo-SAL-Alliance stands for the best in heavy lift shipping and in complex global transportation. We have a unique team of highly experienced people which can really create value for our customers. From engineering to full-scope project management, by combining our resources we can now provide services that literally exceed any other heavy lift service currently in the market. It's a winner."

The joint venture was cleared by the German competition authority earlier this month. The two companies share 90+ years of combined experience, are both family-owned and managed and are among the world's most prominent and technically advanced heavy lift carriers. Note that both SAL and Jumbo continue as independent operators and vessel owners and both remain active brands in the market, the release said.

Mr Felix Peinemann, VP Sales Shipping at Jumbo, states: "The Jumbo-SAL-Alliance merges the global chartering and marketing activities of both companies, creating one large, joint sales organisation. Both brands retain their market presence in addition to the new set-up. On a personal note, we have spent much time with our new colleagues in the past months, organising this joint venture, which went very well. I believe that our joint efforts have led to a solid alliance. If the level of cooperation and building relationships in the preparation phase is any measure of success, then the Jumbo-SAL-Alliance will be very successful!"

VCT sets ship productivity record for a Maersk vessel

108 moves per hour. These achievements underscore the commitment of VCT to provide consistent and reliable best-in-class services to the shipping lines, emphasised a release.

With the enhanced operational efficiency at the terminal, VCT is facilitating faster ship movements, thereby reducing the cost of logistics and improving the effectiveness of the supply chain for the ex-im trade. The terminal's strategic location, hinterland connectivity and on-dock rail facilities are attractive to shipping lines globally.

Extending the rebates for vessel-related charges, VPT's accommodation of container vessels of 390 metre LOA and developing an empty container yard are some of the recent initiatives taken to facilitate the trade. With an additional 395-metre-long quay getting ready for operation during the third quarter of the year, terminal capacity will increase to 1.3 million TEUs annually by the end of 2021, the release informed.

Shippers urged to lock in rates at sustainable levels

Exim News Service

LONDON, April 15

AS the recent Suez blockage has further reduced the likelihood that sea freight rates will return this year to anything like pre-Covid levels, freight forwarders have reportedly urged ocean freight shippers to lock in rates at acceptable or sustainable levels, as per reports in the international media. Although shipping activity resumed in the Suez Canal after the stuck container vessel was re-floated, forwarders have been bracing for further supply chain disruption in the aftermath of the week-long blockade. They were expecting the incident to add to port congestion both in Asia and Europe, leading to fresh shortages of equipment, further impacting uplifts and departures to Europe and the US. Also, the itineraries of delayed vessels might change or planned ports omitted for rescheduling purposes, creating artificial void sailings, with serious repercussions for available capacity, the reports added.

Hapag-Lloyd orders 150,000 TEU of standard & reefer containers for 2021

Exim News Service

HAMBURG, April 15

HAPAG-LLOYD is stepping up once more investment in its container fleet in light of the current situation – similar to what the container shipping line did in 2020 in its initial response to the pandemic – as today it needs significantly more than the normal number of boxes to carry the same volume because boxes are turning slower.

It has ordered 150,000 TEU from China – both dry boxes and state-of-the-art reefer containers. Some of the boxes were already delivered to Hapag-Lloyd and integrated into its existing container fleet in the first quarter for 2021, but the majority of them are expected to be delivered in the upcoming months. Additionally, Hapag-Lloyd has ordered 8,000 TEU of special containers to be used for over-sized or dangerous goods.

“The container shipping industry is currently seeing unprecedented demand, which has led to a shortage of containers all over the world. With its recent container orders, Hapag-Lloyd is contributing to efforts to ease the current situation and will be able to offer its customers a much better service,” says Mr Rolf Haben Jansen, CEO of Hapag-Lloyd.

The investments amount to roughly $550 million, making it one of the biggest container orders in the history of Hapag-Lloyd, said a release.

Panama Canal Authority postpones planned price hike following calls from shipping industry

Exim News Service

SINGAPORE, April 15

THE Panama Canal Authority (ACP) has announced that it will postpone price increases on canal transit fees which were due to come into effect on April 15, 2021.

The announcement follows a joint letter sent by the International Chamber of Shipping (ICS), Asian Shipowners' Association (ASA) and European Community Shipowners' Association (ECSA), expressing concerns over the speed of price increases, said a release.

The proposed changes, representing a minimum cost increase per transit reservation of $20,000 (up 57%) and a maximum cost increase of $58,500 (up 167%), will now start on June 1, 2021.

The letter, sent in March, expressed concerns over the "significant increase" of the fees and stated that the April 15 start-date given by the ACP was too short for the maritime industry and canal users to be able to adjust. ACP has linked the increased fees to changing supply and demand conditions for the service it offers.

Panama Canal is one of the world's busiest shipping routes; nearly 14,000 transits were made last year.

On April 13, 2021, the ACP announced the postponed date for the new booking tariffs. This change in the implementation date will provide the maritime industry more time to prepare for the adjustment to the new booking fees.

ICS Secretary-General Mr Guy Platten said, "We are reassured to see that ACP has responded to industry's calls to postpone its proposed transit reservation price increases until 1 June, giving industry time to fully prepare for these changes. The increases represent a significant rise in cost, especially considering the ongoing economic impact of the Covid-19 pandemic.

"We appreciate that the fee change is designed to adapt to changing supply and demand for the Panama Canal's service and we look forward to establishing a productive dialogue with the ACP to develop a long-term pricing strategy to provide industry with predictability on transit cost.

"We hope to be able to hold a virtual meeting with the ACP to discuss and gain further clarity on these issues."

This announcement comes as a relief to the shipping industry that has been navigating the crew change crisis and other Covid-19 pandemic related disruptions. The industry has commended the ACP's decision and welcomes ongoing communication on issues central to preserving the global supply chain, the release added.

ICD TKD regains its business volumes despite misinformation by certain associations

Exim News Service

NEW DELHI, April 15
INLAND Container Depot, Tughlakabad (ICD TKD), a flagship terminal of the Container Corporation of India (CONCOR), has successfully regained its business volumes post the Covid-19 lockdown during FY2020-21 with cooperation extended by all stakeholders. This is despite certain sections of the local road transportation associations not cooperating by refusing to run their vehicles due to ulterior motives, informed a release. They have even gone to the extent of dissuading certain members of the trade from availing the services of the terminal, and have also discouraged them from entering the terminal. However, with the active support of the local police, ef-ports have been made to ensure the movement of other vehicles, the release said.

This action of the local road transport associations is seen as unfavourable to the trade, with trade representatives and Customs considering it improper. However, the associations, despite several rounds of talks with CONCOR, have remained non-cooperative.

ICD TKD has been advising them regularly to be accommodative, by operating their vehicles too, for the benefit of the trade.

The release urged all concerned stakeholders not to fall prey to the false information being spread by these associations and extend cooperation to ensure ICD TKD functions smoothly to help the trade and economy of the country.

Is Ever Given incident a wake-up call for box ship size?

operator responsibility. Thus, the heavily capital intensive liner industry is caught in the vortex of speed, reliability, service quality and economies of scale, as transport, social cohesion and the economy are strongly inter-related. In view of these facts, the Ever Given incident can be termed as a Black Swan effect in maritime transport. However, the cascading effect of such incidents on global supply chains is enormous and the resulting business/cargo claims can't be undermined at any levels. Finally, this would be obviously reflected on cargo and marine insurance/P&I, premiums/calls. Deliberating the ripple effects and its ramifications on international trade, shipping and logistics in particular, a concerted approach of all concerned stakeholders merits commercial wisdom. After all, economies of scale are an indispensable reality in maritime transport.
